

Epilogue

Yes, we know. Most websites don't have epilogues. However—

As “you may have gathered from the preceding pages, we take our work for clients seriously, finding those people who can make your business and your life better. It's what we do.

But we don't take ourselves seriously. In fact we like to poke fun at some of our self-impressed competitors. “We are the world's largest executive search firm” (and because of the plush offices and high overheads, the most over-priced!). “We are specialists in your industry” (and as a result we have too many off-limits clients that we can't approach for your benefit!). “Our search process is unique” —Oh, give us a break!

So as a reward for your going through our website, page after page (Hope you didn't miss a thing!), we're presenting a cartoon-of-the-month—or as often as we remember to change it!

Enjoy! And by the way, remember to let us “help you find those people” !

Our job is to help you find those people.
